

60

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a process for the preparation of aqueous suspensions of fluid mineral matter, which are able to be pumped and conveyed by the end user
5 immediately after the filtration stage, possibly followed by a compression, which process comprises filtration in two separate stages.

The invention also concerns aqueous suspensions of mineral matter obtained and their uses.